how to use this guide

1. Find specific Supplier companies.
   If you’re looking for a specific company and know the company’s name, check the alphabetical listing starting on page 19 or the company index starting on page 12. Also, don’t forget to check the advertisers index, on page 165, to locate specific company ads.

2. Find suppliers of the products or services you need. Browse through the list of products and services categories that begins on page 93 for categories that interest you. Then flip to the designated page number for a list of the companies that offer that product or service.

3. Find companies with the capabilities you need.
   Looking for companies that can work in wood, metal, glass, or plastics, or provide specific manufacturing capabilities for custom projects? Browse through the list of capabilities that starts on page 135. Then flip to the designated page number for a list of the companies with that capability.

4. Find detailed information about specific companies.
   Once you’ve located the companies that supply the products and services you need, you can get detailed information, including full address, phone, fax, email, and website contact information, specific contact names and titles, and descriptions of the products and services the company provides, its customer types, and geographical areas served. In many cases, you’ll also find information on company size, number of employees, and representative jobs.

   Even more detailed information is available at shopassociation.org through our online member search, Supplier Connect. You can look up companies by name, or choose from a variety of categories to find companies that supply specific products and services.

5. Looking for companies located in a specific geographic area?
   Try the geographic locator index that begins on page 156. Companies and their subsidiaries and plants are listed by countries, states or provinces, and cities.
